"The Former Centrally Planned Economies 25 Years After the Fall of Communism"

CALL FOR PAPERS

The next issue of The Visio Journal shall open with a paper "An Examination of the Former Centrally Planned Economies 25 Years After the Fall of Communism" by James Gwartney and Hugo Montesinos, which shall be followed by papers that will each focus former centrally planned economies that have navigated the transition from central planning to market direction most successfully (Georgia, Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Romania, Czech Republic, Bulgaria, Poland, Slovak Republic, Hungary, and Slovenia). These follow-up country-focused papers will take a closer look at changes that have enhanced their past performance and troublesome factors that are likely to slow their future growth and development.

The call is providing those interested in contributing the follow-up papers with:

- Abstract & Key Findings of the leading paper, "An Examination of the Former Centrally Planned Economies 25 Years After the Fall of Communism"
- Gwartney and Montesinos' More Detailed Look at Ten Success Stories (Georgia, Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Romania, Czech Republic, Bulgaria, Poland, and Slovak Republic)
